

2025-2026 Master's Degree in Industrial Property (MIP)

Jointly Offered by

The World Intellectual Property Organization

And

Tongji University

September 2025 to December 2026

About the Program

Intellectual property (IP) rights could be seen as a bundle of property rights such as patents, copyrights, trademarks and designs, that protect creations of the mind. In the increasingly knowledge-driven economy, new products, brands, and creative designs are developed almost every day, and therefore IP has become an increasingly important part of every aspect of life. For creators, IP rights provide certain exclusive rights to defend their innovations and maximize the commercial benefits from their creative efforts or reputations. At the national level, strong IP protection incentivizes R&D investment, encourages trade and foreign investments, and it drives productivity and economic growth. More importantly, IP maximizes the knowledge spillover, which accelerates the generation of new technology and rising living standards overall. Whether it comes to artificial intelligence, green technologies, or traditional culture expressions, knowledge of IP rights is essential.

Comprehensive and dynamic concepts of industrial property form the backdrop for this MIP in Industrial Property program. The program offers a unique and challenging opportunity for students not only to acquire solid knowledge in the core areas of IP, but also to focus on industrial property protection in its many facets and stages. As this is a program offered in cooperation with WIPO and high-ranking European universities and institutes, the international level will be covered extensively and comparative law aspects will be included, with European Union law serving as the primary paradigm of regional protection systems. The learning experience will be further enhanced and inspired by the involvement of specialized national and international judges and practitioners experienced in the field.
